

Pre-licensure Disclosure

The Transition-to-Teaching P-12 Education program at Indiana Wesleyan University seeks to prepare the program graduate for licensure/certification and service in the education profession. Licensure and certification procedures vary by state.

Although most states provide guidelines for and participate in some type of reciprocity for educator licensing, interstate reciprocity is not a guarantee. Most states are members of the National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification (NASDTEC) and participate in the NASDTEC Interstate Agreement.

The following is taken from the NASDTEC website, <https://www.nasdtec.net>:

The Interstate Agreement facilitates the mobility of educators among the states and other jurisdictions that are members of NASDTEC and have signed the Agreement. Although there may be conditions applicable to individual jurisdictions, the Agreement makes it possible for an educator who has completed an approved program and/or who holds a certificate or license in one jurisdiction to earn a certificate or license in another state or jurisdiction. For example, a teacher who completed an approved teacher preparation program in Alabama already will be able to earn a certificate in Georgia. Receiving states may impose certain special requirements which must be met in a reasonable period of time.

The interstate agreement, arranged by NASDTEC, is a collection of over 50 individual agreements by states and Canadian provinces. Each individual "agreement" is a statement by that state or jurisdiction of which other states' educator certificates will be accepted by that state. Specifically, the agreement identifies which particular types of educator certificates (teachers, administrators, service personnel, or career/technical), and which particular styles of certifications (titles, fields, etc.) will be accepted.

Such an "acceptance" agreement means that the "receiving" state issues some form of authorization allowing the inbound certificate holder to legally teach or provide service in the receiving state, provided the license issued by the "sending" state is acceptable under the agreement. This authorization may be limited in time by the receiving state, and the receiving state may impose additional requirements that need to be accomplished before the educator can teach or practice after the end of the time limit.

It is not a collection of reciprocal agreements. For example, although Georgia affirms in its agreement that it will accept certificates from Connecticut, this acceptance in no way implies that Connecticut will accept Georgia certificates.

It is not a guarantee that all certificate titles will be accepted by a receiving state. For example, in the "sending" state you may hold a "temporary" or "provisional" certificate which is excluded from the agreement signed by the "receiving" state. In such a case, the NASDTEC Interstate Agreement provides no help toward your receipt of a certificate in the "receiving" state.

It is not necessarily "full" reciprocity. The educator may have to complete additional requirements such as coursework, assessments, or classroom experience, before receiving a full professional certificate in the new state.
